In 2017, the Nevada legislature passed SB249 that requires high schools across the state to teach one-half unit of credit of economics in combination with or without American government. The UNLV Economics Micro-Credential will provide educators of the Clark County School System with the skills and activities to teach (or enhance their teaching of) economics in the classroom. The course is primarily asynchronous, with online instruction videos, readings, and quizzes. There will be one Saturday morning class near the end of the course where educators will practice the concepts learned and practice the in-classroom activities, in addition the course will help establish a network of economics teachers that can continue to share and assist each other. This micro-credential will count as 16 credit hours. In addition to completing the online coursework, teachers must attend the one in-person Saturday class in order to complete the credential.

This course is designed for current teachers licensed to teach social studies in the state of Nevada but does not count towards a license in social studies. This course does count towards continuing education units for licensed social studies teachers in Nevada or educators wanting to learn more about economics.

This program is made possible by support from the UNLV Center for Business and Economic Research and the Engelstad Foundation.
